1. Claims 1-6 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected group, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Applicant elected without traverse in Paper No. 7.

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Williams, who shows a contour cutter with all of the recited limitations including a first cutter (34) for cutting an apex, and a second cutter (36) for cutting a side. The tools cut successively due to their angled progression best seen in figure 8.

4. Claims 7-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Peterson et al. who shows a contour cutter with all of the recited limitations including a first cutter (138) for cutting an apex, a second cutter (32) for cutting one side, and a third punch (34) for cutting another side. Peterson also shows a support (28) for supporting the workpiece. The tools are capable of being driven in succession, due to their independent drive mechanisms.

The claims break down each cutter into numerous contiguous portions. Of course, each of Peterson's blades has numerous contiguous portions, even if all of said portions are the same. Since Applicant never recited in the claims the structure of each portion (such as straight or curved), the claims are quite broad and readable on Peterson.
